

I would like to express my concern at learning of your actions against local broadcaster KNOZ. I live only blocks from the station and have come to find that, while their music choices may not always match those of my own, they are a valuable asset to the community. Furthermore, the stations low powered broadcasts reach only a very local market with market specific content. This means local individuals may listen to the music made by their community members. What could be intrusive or disruptive about this?
